The bill has little or no direct fiscal effect on the state or political subdivisions. It modifies the requirements and processes by which an owner must abide in order to enforce a lien on personal property stored in a self-storage facility. In the case of vehicles that have been impounded by a towing service, the bill modifies the notice requirements by which a towing service or storage facility must abide in order to initiate the process to obtain a title to the impounded vehicle. Although disputes over liens on personal property stored at self-storage facilities or over claims on vehicle titles could be resolved by civil action, changes made by the bill would not appreciably raise the likelihood of an action being filed with a municipal or county court, and consequently would probably not increase caseloads by much, if at all.
